Southern Scripts Members Get Up to 90-Day Prescription Fill

Tired of going back to your pharmacy every month to get your prescription refilled? When you use a FirstChoice[™] pharmacy through your Southern Scripts Rx Drug card, you can get up to 90 days worth of prescriptions on eligible drugs, instead of the usual 30 days.

FirstChoice is the preferred pharmacy network of Southern Scripts, offering access at 50,000+ participating FirstChoice[™] pharmacies across the nation. FirstChoice[™] consists of both independent (local/ community) and retail (national/regional) pharmacies. To locate a FirstChoice[™] pharmacy near you, please use the Network Pharmacy Locator.

Southern Scripts is a pharmacy benefit manager that offers you multiple ways to save on your prescription drugs. For more information about the pharmacy services available to you, visit the Southern Scripts website. Go to Find Your Member Page. Where it asks for a Group Number type in SSNANC, click View Member Page. From there you can search for medications by name, search the Allied National Select Formulary (specific to Allied National Southern Script members only), find a pharmacy near you and download forms. You can even create your own online account to order and manage your prescriptions.

Member Response to Our Diabetes Management Program is Positive

Funding Advantage members who utilize Allied HealthCare Assistant have access to GEMCORE, a no-charge diabetes management program providing health coaching, diabetes supplies and diabetes medication. Reaction to the program has been positive.

“My coach has been the best,” one member said about GEMCORE. “She has went above and beyond to get me the information and supplies I need. She is very knowledgeable and has been a key factor in getting my A1c under control.”

GEMCORE, through Allied HealthCare Assistant, offers weight and hypertension management programs, as well as free supplies.

Another member commented, “My coach has motivated me in the right direction to get healthy. He was instrumental in obtaining a glucose monitoring system. With this I regularly am checking my levels. Fantastic coach. Thanks!”

Top Seven Reasons Short-Term Medical Plans Are Good for Students

It's back-to-school time, and college-aged young adults are getting ready for their freshman year of college or packing up for another year away from home. Make sure if this situation applies to you or your employees that you take the time to find out more about short-term medical (STM) insurance with a host of health-centered benefits.

Here are the top seven reasons an STM policy is a good choice for parents and their college students:

1. No networks – A parent might have a local PPO network that won't cover their child going to school in another ZIP code. Many STM plans have an all-access network, meaning they can see any doctor in any state without network restrictions.
2. Student-athlete coverage – Some STM policies do not cover sports injuries. But Pivot Health STM plans offer benefits for non-professional collegiate sports.
3. Preventive care with wellness checks – Before students head off to school, they can have one free preventive checkup each policy year up to a plan-specific maximum dollar amount.
4. Some plans provide childhood immunizations paid 100% up to age 18 – Freshmen can get off on the right foot at school by having their immunizations covered before the deductible is met.
5. Free telemedicine – With every Pivot Health STM policy, students have access to free and unlimited telemedicine visits 24/7. That means a 3:00 a.m. sore throat can be addressed right away at no cost, and a prescription sent for pick-up the moment the pharmacy opens.
6. Budget-friendly – STM plans have a range of deductibles and copay options that impact monthly premiums. Still, an STM insurance policy for a young adult starts at around $56 per month.*
7. Flexible coverage – Parents can choose to enroll their student in an STM plan for 364 days up to three years (depending on state rules), saving the parent time and the hassle of obtaining a new insurance policy every school year until graduation.

As you can see, short-term medical plans from Pivot Health can help provide affordable health insurance for college students. Talk to your agent to learn more about Pivot Health and short-term medical products.
